

Thrills and Spills for Ski Enthusiasts at Mt. Judah

SIX MILES north of Pontiac and a half mile east of Baldwin Road, just a little more than an hour's ride from Detroit, is Mt. Judah, where members of the Pontiac Ski Club and visitors enjoy this famous winter sport. The club, now in its second year, is rapidly growing in popularity as well as in numbers. A long, all-terrain and steep slopes for the experts, moderate hills for the novices and small hills for the children with their sleds induce whole families to spend the day. Some of the veterans of the sport are shown coming in at the end of the run with Mt. Judah in the background. This winter playground will hum with activity whenever snow conditions permit. The attractive miss (left) is Betty Lou Kautz, of Pontiac, headed for the cabin to warm up with hot dogs and coffee.

UP THEY GO again riding the ski tow to the top. It would be a tedious slow climb without this.

WHEN YOU'RE WHIZZING DOWN hill and lose your balance, a spill is almost inevitable. If a skier knows how, he can take the spill without injury. Jane Hallett, of Detroit, demonstrates.
