Ski Book Printed By State

Skiers on Wisconsin's 49 ski hills may choose between 316 downhill runs, with a total vertical drop of more than two miles, and just over 20 miles of total downhill distance.

Going uphill, there's a choice between 11 chairlifts, 2 pomalifts, 21 T-bars, and 210 rope tows.

These statistics, and a great many more useful facts, are found in the 1965-66 edition of "Ski Wisconsin", just released by the Vacation and Travel Service of the Wisconsin Conservation Department.

Constant improvement in ski facilities, chalets, and skier comfort shows up in this new directory of the state's privately operated winter sports centers. The hills are widely scattered, from the far northwest corner near Superior, to Wilmot on the Illinois line near Kenosha, and from Mineral Point in the southwest to the Door county peninsula.

The new directory includes Mineral Point Ski Slope, a new operation in Iowa county. One hill has been dropped. Delafield Lodge, just west of Milwaukee, became a highway construction casualty when Interstate 94 pushed past at the foot of its hill.

Copies of "Ski Wisconsin" are available from the Vacation and Travel Service at Box 450, Madison 53701, or from Wisconsin Vacation Centers in Milwaukee (819 North Sixth St.) and Chicago (205 North Michigan Ave.).
