Ski Resorts Are Handy to Area

Three of Them New This Year

Tourist Council Lists 87 in State

When one thinks about skiing, he almost automatically turns his thoughts to Michigan's northland. The northern part of the Lower Peninsula and the Upper Peninsula are dotted with ski resorts and winter sports parks. But there are a surprising number of new ski resorts and winter play areas close to Flint.

There are 87 areas listed by the Michigan Tourist Council in its "Winter Sports Guide" for this year. Of these, 29 are south of the Huron City-Muskegon line. There are only 10 more than this in the northern part of the Lower Peninsula.

Many of the "southern" ski areas are clustered southeast of Flint and from a few drive away.

THERE ARE 12 such resorts in a circle that is roughly between Flint and Pontiac. An edge of the circle is at the northeast and Kennington Metropolitan Park and Brighton on the southwest.

Also within easy driving distance are the ski areas of the Upper Peninsula. These are at the Grand Island Trapping Unit near Marquette, and at the Grand Island Trapping Unit near Marquette.
