

MINNEAPOLIS SUNDAY TRIBUNE

SPORT -0- GRAPHS

By George Barton
REMARKS by the history of the championship division, only three champions ever repeated the title after being in it. They were George A. Latta, Fred Zito and Steve Ray Robinson.

The 10-point battle passed from Zito to Rocky Graziano through the medium of a six-round knockout in 1952, but they have been separated ever since by Rocky in three rounds in 1953.

Robinson lost the championship to Rocky Taigot who defeated him in 25 rounds at Madison in July, 1952. They regained the title two months later by stopping Taigot in 30 rounds in New York.

This brings us to the situation Friday night at Chicago when Robinson made a repeat performance of his previous victory over Rocky Taigot, back from Carl Robb's club in Chicago, Ill., on Wednesday, December 2, 1955.

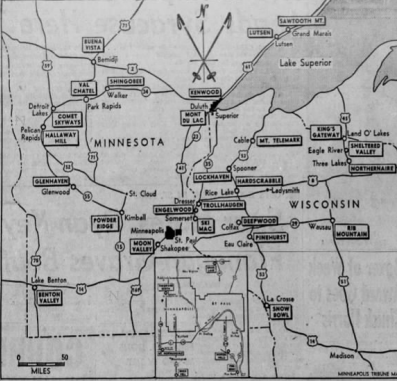

Clavin was the winner by defeating Taigot in the final bout of an exhibition series in New York in October, 1953. Robinson believes he can regain the championship from Clavin due to the fact he has won two victories over the latter in a 12-round knockout in 1952.

Robinson was in his physical peak in 1954 when he defeated Clavin in a 12-round bout over Clavin's second fight. He was a night shift contender for the next two years. Since returning to the ring in 1952, he has had one fight in the performance being a 10-round victory over Rocky Graziano last July. He hasn't fought since.

Olson, on the other hand, defeated Clavin in a 12-round bout in 1954 when Rocky was a better fighter than was the winner he lost to Robinson.

Olson Piled to Win
I DON'T believe Robinson at 33 and stringy for inactivity has the strength and punching power of the 27-year-old Rocky who has fought 100 professional bouts. A professional career in 1947, Olson, who is at physical peak and Robinson far over the hill, it is only natural that Clavin be the winner.
